

The audience waits in silence as the lights dim slowly overhead and the curtain rises on an empty stage.
Dr. Aslam enters from the left. He carries a lantern.

What do you want from me? she cries, and the night answers with nothing but wind and rain and the long slow sound of the sea against the stones.